1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the subject. It is shown that the theory is based on the assumption that the subject is a function of the variables and that the function is continuous and differentiable. The theory is then applied to the case of a function of two variables.

Fletcher, John. 1579-1625.

The two noble kinsmen.

The first edition of this play (1634) bears on its title-page the statement that it was written by Fletcher and Shakespeare, but Shakespeare's share in the work is considered doubtful.

It is included in several of the collected editions of the spurious and doubtful plays of Shakespeare, also in many editions of the works of Beaumont and Fletcher, but the separately published texts are to be found under Fletcher.

as is shown by the difference in type and paper; the same folios in the latter copy contain a sonnet by Valdés, which is also to be found on folio 20. According to Gallardo these folios were reprinted in order to omit this sonnet. Gallardo also states that ff. 202, 203 (by an error the last is numbered 127) have been reprinted, probably on account of some profanity in a sonnet by Quevedo, which does not appear in either copy.

In the first copy, signature Rr is repeated, ff. 175, 176 are misplaced, and the folios of the Tabla are bound at the beginning, while in the latter they are bound at the end. The second copy was bound by Bauzonnet-Trautz.

PLANT, FRUIT, SEED, & LEAF

Selection of the plant, fruit, seed, and leaf is a common method of identifying plants.
The plant, fruit, seed, and leaf are all important parts of the plant. The plant is the main part of the plant. The fruit is the part of the plant that contains the seed. The seed is the part of the plant that grows into a new plant. The leaf is the part of the plant that makes food for the plant.
